AWAITING EVIDENCE IN HESPERIAN CASE

WASHINGTON HAS NO INFORMATION BY WHICH TO JUDGE FACTS OF STEAMER'S SINKING.

GET BERLIN'S DENIAL

German Government Sends Disclaimer That Canadian Vessel Was Torpedoed by a Submarine.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Sept. 15.—State department officials, commenting today on the disclaimer of the Berlin government that the Canadian steamer Hesperian was torpedoed, said that sufficient evidence had been received upon which to base representations to Germany at this time. From the facts at hand, it was said, no opinion could be formed, as to whether the Hesperian was torpedoed or struck by a mine.

Berlin Sends Denial. Berlin, via London, Sept. 15.—The German government, in a note from the foreign office to Ambassador Garelli, has made quite clear its claim of responsibility for the sinking of the steamer Hesperian. On the face of the evidence thus far at hand, the government is satisfied that the Hesperian was not sunk by a German submarine.

The communication is a preliminary note, which may be supplemented when all the facts in connection with the Hesperian incident are established definitely. The German government states that, on the basis of the information thus far obtained, the theory that the Hesperian was sunk by a German submarine apparently may be abandoned absolutely.

It is said that official records show no submarine should have been in the vicinity of the Hesperian at the time she was blown up. Furthermore, the point is made that the violence of the explosion and the place at which the steamer sank are such as can be found in that due to a mine.

The report does not profess to be final, but is based on evidence so convincing to the government that it feels safe in asserting the Hesperian could not possibly have been attacked by a German submarine.

Berlin, Sept. 15.—The British government, in its disclaimer of the Hesperian cause, the German says the way is made clear for President Wilson's ultimate position regarding the German note concerning justification of the sinking of the Arctic."

The newspaper declared that the British press must give up its hope of a quick settlement between Berlin and Washington. It quotes President Wilson as having refused to be influenced by British reports of a new menace to German-American relations which had just been guided into a more peaceful channel, and adds:

"The president's cool self-containment is now justified. The British tissue of lies is all dried out to pieces and if anything remains of the pretense of responsibility for the misfortune, it probably will rest immediately, as we suspected, on one of Britain's excellent anchored mines."

Denies Submarine Attack. Berlin, via wireless to Sayville, Sept. 15.—The Overseas Agency says it is virtually certain that the steamer Hesperian was not sunk by a German submarine, and adds: "If, as is said by a London newspaperman, one member of the Hesperian's crew pretended to have seen a German submarine, this means nothing, as the explosion occurred at about 8:45 p.m., when it was dark. Moreover, it has invariably been the case recently that when an explosion has been shown to have been due to a mine, several so-called eye witnesses, persons who have seen the periscope of a submarine."

More than fifty threatening letters have been received by the commission. Largely due to the action of the foreign commissioners do not visit the financial sections even in couples. Whether this active opposition is genuine in its nature, or is organized, is not known.

A further series of opposition to flotation of the big loan, according to word passed by the commission today, has been ordered in widespread circles by German-American depositors that participated in the banks in which they have their funds would be followed by withdrawals.

Loan Open to All.

Basel B. Blackwell, secretary of the commission, in a talk today with newspaper men, declined positively to touch upon this subject, but confined his remarks to the general situation.

He was of the opinion that any loan so placed here should be open to participation of the entire public, pro-German and proally alike in sentiment.

From another source it was learned that invitations had been sent to carrie large pro-German banks, because the commission was somewhat doubtful as to whether these bankers would care to take part in floating a loan. It was understood that the sum of $100,000,000 would be required if the commission could be assured of the pro-German bankers in a loan yet to become known that they would welcome an invitation to come in.

Washington, Sept. 15.—Protests against the Anglo-French credit loan being negotiated in this country were received at the White House today in telegrams from various parts of the country. One man in Maine wired that the sums would be started on banks participating in the loans and that things would be precipitated. No indications of organized opposition, however, has been made apparent here, officials assert.

No protest or communication of any kind regarding the proposed loan came from the German government, but it was learned that the American government is said to have no present intention of interfering with the efforts of the Anglo-French banking commission.

Government Not to Interfere.

Officials in close touch with the administration asserted that the question has not been formally considered either by President Wilson or Secretary Lansing, as the purpose is to take money for purchase of goods in the United States it is unlikely that the government will interfere with the project.

A few communications criticising the loan reached the state department late, but none was from representatives of any foreign government. The department has taken no action on communications, and indications are that it is unlikely to do so. It was stated on authority that the department has not objection to the credit.

New York Official Cancels Libel Suit

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Albany, Sept. 15.—Attorney General Elbridge E. Doherty has withdrawn his $50,000 libel suit against the New York Tribune. The suit was brought after the publication of a story regarding the dropping of Wm. Travers Jerome as counsel on the Thaw case. The Tribune recently said editorially that it never had any intention of assaulting the integrity of the attorney general, and the discontinuance of the suit followed what is said to have been filed in Chautauqua county.

WISCONSIN SERUM PLANT PROTECTS STATE HOG CROP

Wisconsin is continuing in its fight against hog cholera.

The campaign first started when the legislature of 1913 provided for the erection of a small serum plant at the Agricultural Experiment Station. Ever since its establishment the little laboratory has been running full force and, not infrequently, over time to supply the demands of the farmers of the state.

All orders are now being filled as soon as received. In addition to the daily output a reserve of 20,000 doses is being kept on hand to meet a sudden demand. Since protected herds are the only dividends asked the serum is sold at cost of production.

While the outbreak that has lasted for about four years is somewhat abating, there is still a danger that the serum plant is urging farmers to keep close watch of their sections and to vacinate if the disease appears in neighboring herds.

PICK SEED TUBERS NOW TO AVOID POTATO BLIGHT

Farmers wishing to avoid a recurrence of potato blight in their fields during 1915 should make it a point to select seed stock only from crops grown on land that has been free from blight and rot this year.

Such careful selection of seed stock is the only salvation in sight, according to R. E. Vaughan of the agricultural experiment station of the University of Wisconsin. While preventive measures such as the application of Bordeaux mixture to plants in late summer, may often check the blight, it is far wiser and safer to begin by careful seed selection at digging time. Disease-free seed represents the "ounce of prevention" so universally recognized as superior to a "pound of cure."

COUNCIL WILL PASS NEW TRAFFIC LAWS

Ordinance Drawn Up By City Attorney Advanced To Third Reading At Session Tuesday.

City Attorney Dougherty has presented to the council changes and new provisions for the city ordinances for the regulation of traffic with sections relating to the automobile laws. The proposed changes, which were discussed at the meeting Tuesday, are similar to the state laws and were given the first and second reading by the commissioners. They will lay over for two meetings and then be given the third reading and if passed, the old city legislation will be revoked.

Besides the action on the ordinance the council transacted routine business, accepting reports from the city treasurer, health and police departments and the municipal court.

Bills for the past two weeks for labor and material amounting to $4,143.88 were allowed and orders drawn for the amounts.

The report of the Board of Public Works on the amount due Ford, Boos and School on the addition to the water works building was received and an order drawn for $1,000 to be paid to the contractors. This amount is seventy-five per cent of the contract price. The report of the board that $447.64 was the cost for sewer, water and gas connections from the extensions on Wisconsin and South Bluff street was received. An order drawn for the amount. $27.64 was drawn in favor of George and Clemons for the work.

A complaint signed by W. A. Motl, R. H. Barlow and A. L. Bogardus, photographers, against A. Smelzer, was received and heard with the council. The complaint alleged that Smelzer is a transient photographer operating in the Hayes block. It is understood that Smelzer is to file a bond of five hundred dollars with the city to insure that he will remain in the city for one year as the ordinance requires.

C. S. Harmon was appointed by Mayor Fatherer as police officer with a term to expire September 30th. The appointment was confirmed.

Superintendent of Streets P. J. Goodman was ordered to repair with crushed stone Magnolia avenue from Washington street to the quarry.

The report of the operations at the stone quarry showed that from August 28th to September 11th a total of 888 square yards had been delivered. This stone is being used on pavement work on Wisconsin and Bluff streets. Ford, Boos and School were granted permission to use a portion of South Wisconsin street for the storage of building material during construction work.

SPANISH OFFERED BY THE EVENING SCHOOL

Advanced French Will Be Taught—German Offered If Students Want Subject—School Opens About 5th.

The evening school of this city, under the direction of Principal C. F. Hill and Superintendent H. C. Buell, will commence probably on Tuesday evening, the fifth, with Spanish as the latest subject to offer. In many other evening schools in the country, Spanish has been taught with much success. Janesville is fortunate in having Father Baccatani, priest at Mercy hospital, as the Spanish instructor, should anybody in this city decide to take up this language. The aim is to instruct Spanish for its commercial value.

Francesco Baccatani speaks French and Spanish fluently. He will teach advanced French to those students who took French in his class last year, and to any others who have had some French. Last year, the night school at Racine enrolled 150 students in Spanish, showing the demand for the subject from a commercial stand-

All orders are now being filled as soon as received. In addition to the daily output a reserve of 20,000 doses is being kept on hand to meet a sudden demand. Since protected herds are the only dividends asked the serum is sold at cost of production.

TWO LEAGUE NINES PLAY HERE FRIDAY

Minneapolis and Cleveland Association Clubs to Play Exhibition Game at Fair Grounds.

Friday afternoon southern Wisconsin baseball fans will have a sight of game baseball, as the Minneapolis Millers and the Cleveland American association team will play an exhibition game here. As the teams are going their strongest at the present time and the Millers are leading on to good place, it should lead to a real baseball game.

Any time that the Minneapolis team comes to this city Janesville takes interest, for it is Janesville men that are back and managing the club. The Cantillon brothers are the ones to give credit for landing the team in first place and both are pure Janesville men. Poston. — Canton played ball here in the days of the famous, unbeatable Mutuals with an aggregation of old time stars. Eddie Beloit will catch for the Millers, and a crowd of his home-town followers will be at the game. The game will start at three o'clock, and a good attendance is expected.

No exhibition game has been scheduled for the Janesville Cardinals for Sunday, and it is doubtful if any contest will be staged this week for the Janesville's due to the dissatisfaction among the fans for the team put into the field against Beloit last Sunday.

LAST OF DELEHANTY'S PASSES FROM BASEBALL

Special to the Gazette

Cleveland, O., Sept. 15.—After basking in the baseball limelight for a quarter of a century, the Delehantys have passed from the major leagues. There were five of the Delehanty all brothers, and they typhined on the sand lots of Cleveland. Every one of them found his way to fame in the baseball world. Ed was the first to get into fast company. He met a tragic death by falling from a bridge. Tom came second, then followed Joe, who was second, and finally Frank, who was third. They were all found to sit in the big leagues. He jumped to the Federal last year and was recently released to the minors. Frank was the fifth mem-

CUBS AND WHITE SOX SLIP DOWN TOBOGGAN

Boston Teams Down Both Chicago Clubs Yesterday.—Benz Loses Game Through Boots.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Both Chicago teams, the White Sox and Cubs, slipped in the pennant league races, the Cubs going down the toboggan to sixth place with a resounding bang which places them thirteen and one-half games from the top. Dick Rudolph beat the Cubs at Chicago yesterday by the score of 7 to 1, and his four base walk in the fourth inning gave the Chicago club a hard shove down the ladder.

The great Jim was missing from the park as he drew a three day suspension, and Bresnahan also drew a three days' vacation for riding Umpire Faison on Monday. Boston was crippled with the loss of Maranville, Schmidt and Snodgrass, but the absence of these stars was hardly noticed, the subs showing just as much spirit and fire as the regulars. Addie Joss's frank remark, "Addie used to say, even after he had entered the no-hit class, that 'There never was a no-hit game. In every game of that kind you'll find at least one hit killed by an extraordinary play in the field,'" There aren't many pitchers who will go that far.

Phillie fans are beginning to wake up to the fact that Breckin Mayer has been doing his share in the club's fight for the pennant while the papers have been lauding Grover Cleveland Alexander. True, a lot of credit goes to Alex, but Mayer's percentage of victories is higher than that of the club and those wins have come mighty handy. The fans are giving Mayer some notice and he is going better than ever now.

Many of the baseball stars that are shining now were picked out in the rough by old timers who have since disappeared from the public eye.

And some of those veterans got the merriment he when they handed in the tips on those future stars. Now and here's Billy Bulen now. Hulen finished his baseball career piloting the tail-end team at Regina, Sask., in 1913. But while there among other youngsters he collected for a future team were Kenneth Williams, now slapping 'em out for the Reds; Jack Smith, grabbed off by the Cards, and Sammie Beer, pitching sensational ball in the minors.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 15.—The down-trodden Sox slipped twelve games from the top of the American league race when Boston walloped them yesterday by the score of 2 to 1. John Collins gummied the Sox defense, though he had a perfect game, three errors, two good throws and lost what should have been a shutout victory for Joe Benz.

Slipping through six innings it looked as if Benz was unbeatable, but in the seventh Collins' error and a double scored two. Russell finished the game. Weaver was benched and Blackburne was given a chance at the short stop.

Phillies Cinching.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 15.—The Phillips were again beaten by Philadelphia Tuesday, the score being 4 to 2.

Adams was hit hard, and after

Cravath had sent one of his offerings over the left field fence he gave way to Hill in the ninth inning, who stopped the scoring. Clingers was effective after the first inning.

The same year that Cobb was hitting so consistently, Ossie Clymer was establishing the minor league record of safe-hitting in twenty-five straight games.

Other extraordinary features include twenty bases on balls by Pitcher Henry Farmer, in a game between St. Louis and Indianapolis, the American association, the winning of two games in one day by Pitcher Hollinger of the Cedar Rapids team of the Central association, who allowed fifteen hits and two runs in twenty-four innings against Marshalltown; a twenty-two inning scoreless tie game between Burlington and Kokok in the same association; George Culshaw's two safe hits on one pitched ball, while Ummer Klein, defected left field, in the Brooklyn-Chicago game of July 10, and Leftfield Rube Oldring's failure to take the field with the rest of his teammates until several balls and strikes had been called upon the batter, due to an interesting conversation with Joe Suerden in a recent Athletic-Browns game in St. Louis.

Long distance swimmers have a new mark to shoot at. Over in New York Robert Dowling, eighteen-year-old boy, swam around Manhattan island, a distance of forty miles, in thirty-eight hours and 45 minutes, breaking all eastern records. Dowling's father followed him in a launch, giving him nourishment every half hour.

Ping Bodie's coming back to the big leagues. George Davis, scouting on the coast for the Yankees, announces that the Yanks will put in a try for Ping. Davis opines Bodie is playing big league ball and never should have been warded out of the American league.

Umpire Scott Chestnut of the Southern league has canned forty players from the game this season and Umpire Byron of the National league has canned more than that. If the two ever get in the same league and work the same game there won't be anyone on the field.

PRESIDENT OF CHINA IS LIBERAL FOR CHARITY

Peking, Sept. 15.—President Yuan Shih Kai has contributed nearly one-third of his salary for this year to charity and public works. The Chinese president receives $30,000 silver dollars a year, which is about $14,000 in gold. He recently gave $24,000 for the establishment of a model primary school and contributed $15,000 for the relief of flood and fire sufferers in the various southern provinces which have suffered disaster.

JANESVILLE TEAM LOSES OUT IN BELoit TOURNAMENT

W. E. Lawyer of Janesville was a close second for high gun honors in the seventh inter-city league shoot held at Beloit on Monday. Beloit and Capron were tied for first with a score of 791. Rockford third and Janesville, with only six shots, fourth. The scores of the Janesville men were: Lawyer, 90; Thometz, 81; Nickerson, 53; Snyder, 84; Heimer, 75; Paul, 87. John Seiver was high gun with a score of 91. The last shoot of the series will be held at Rockford Dec. 7th.

Admittedly there are cleaner and more decisive ways of winning a ring championship than on a foul, but that very same thing has been done before and generally the victor in such a bout has been recognized as the champion of his division. A comparatively recent example was given when Willie Ritchie won over Ad Wolgast on a foul decision. At that time the child was made of fat Ritchie had won a clean-cut victory, and consequently would not be recognized as the lightweight king. But Ritchie wore the crown with honors until Freddie Welsh out-slashed him in Londontown. Johnny Erie may or may not be the superior of Kid Williams, but the fact remains that he was giving the champion a terrible battle all the way, leading on points up to the time the second foul blow was landed.

Howard Estabrook in "Four Feathers."

On Thursday and Friday Meyers Theatre will present the Metro picture, "Four Feathers" featuring the noted stage star, Howard Estabrook.

The story of Captain Mason's "Four Feathers" continues. Harry Faversham, who, at a banquet at his father's home, bears stories of war, death and torture and fears that he, when put to the test, cannot "make good." When war is declared he resigns his commission in the army. Three of his comrades send him white feathers, the symbol of cowardice, and his henchman, who sees him alive, them, is adored, fourth from his fan.

Stung by this, Faversham drops from sight. Secretly goes to Egypt where the war is being fought between the English and Arabs and in disguise as a Greek, he recovers lost documents of great value, rescues from death and torture each of his three comrades and forces them from their recognition of his heroism that they demand the return of their white feathers.

They tell them simply: "Take her to her" and finally on his return to England she is waiting for her feather and a wedding-ring.

New Fall Dress Fabrics

The New Belted Semi-Princess Model Can Easily Be Made At Home

Belt and panel are both distinctive features of this dress. Often times this belt is of the same material as the dress and frequently it is of suede or patent leather. The panel gives the smooth flat effect which is now modish. Developed in serge with trimmings of satin, this is a dress that may be worn appropriately for the street, shopping and for general day-time wear. One of the new greys in poplin, with collar, cuffs and belt of black satin or broadcloth, would make this a smart dress for afternoons.

BLESSINGS.

In the United States there are upwards of 2,500 newspapers which publish daily issues. There are seventy-five periodicals appearing three times a week. Something more than 600 are published twice a week, and the weekly output reaches the almost appalling total of 16,000 different publications.

Averaging them all to a daily basis, and granting the modest limit of three editorials for each, it follows that the American public is kept in the straight and narrow way by 20,000 editorials a day. How can we sufficiently appreciate such a blessing as this? The enlightenment involved is almost blinding. The output makes that only other source of pure wisdom, the congressional record, look like one of Eugene Field's paragraphs.

It is the first business of an editorial to get itself read. How many of these are read? How many of them were worth writing, to say nothing of reading? We have an immense civil service in this country, federal, state and municipal. How much of it thinks that going through the motions is equivalent to doing the work?

In a place where space is valuable, where conciseness is necessarily a science, where brevity is the soul of wit, may it be suggested that the net results of the statistics here submitted are lamentably small?

It is claimed that the influence of the pulpit is waning and that the newspapers have taken its place. And yet, people still read editorials—when they are worth reading—even when they stay away from church. It is a tribute to the intelligence of our people that they do not read the machine-made article, which, having no soul, necessarily has no inspiration.

An eastern exchange is responsible for this scrap of information. The editorial page of every publication enjoys the same circulation as the rest of the paper, but it is safe to say that it is read less than any other page. The average reader is interested in news, more than in the expression of opinion, and the editorial page interests only a limited class. The day of the long and heavy editorial is of the past, as is the day of the individual writer. The man who reaches the masses today, with his pen, must possess the ability to express opinions interest, and if a touch of human interest is added all the better.

Brisbane, of the Hearst staff—the best paid editorial writer in the country—is popular because he gets down to the people and advocates their cause. He has discovered the secret of popularity.

BUMPER CROPS.

In spite of a cold and backward season, causing more or less damage in certain localities, the crops throughout the country are the heaviest in history. Late statistics, which are reliable, say that the wheat yield will not be far from a round billion bushels, a figure that has not heretofore been approached.

The 1914 crop of $91,000,000 bushels was itself an unexampled one at that time. Corn, if present prospects are confirmed, has but once been exceeded, namely, by the 3,124,000,000 bushel crop of 1912. Oats have a yield considerably in excess of earlier years. Our wheat crop will be needed abroad and will be sold at prices based on the exigencies of war.

There will be correspondingly large demands for other grain crops. Hence the grain export situation is one that merits careful consideration as a favoring factor in the Stock Exchange situation. The railroads are to have a large grain tonnage. There is in fact already a drift in market circles from the wild speculation that marked the so-called war stocks back to the railroads and to more conservative trading as a whole.

There are also heavy yields of hay and fruit. Nature has indeed smiled once more upon the American farmer, whose products this year are estimated at about $10,000,000,000, and this in spite of the lower prices sometimes resulting from this self-same bounty. The only notable exception is cotton, which has been adversely affected by the war.

The situation is not as bad, however, as is made to appear in political circles, for the contraband problem has been much clarified and the loss of German and Austrian consumption, amounting to nearly 5,000,000 bales, is compensated for by the smaller crop and the immense quantities used in the manufacture of explosives. Traffic in the west is already increasing, owing to the grain movement, but exports of the latter are still under the influence of the exchange situation and the certainty of a big rush of Russian grain when the Dardanelles are opened.

WHAT OF RUSSIA?

The grand duke of Russia is no longer the leader of the great Russian army. His removal by the czar has caused much speculation and more or less foreboding as to consequences. That Russia is in dire straits is evidenced by the defeat of her forces in almost every important engagement, and the removal of her great military commander is very significant.

That the nation is honeycombed with intrigue and disloyalty, has long been an open secret, and that her army has been crippled by lack of arms and munitions, held up by grafters who demand a rake-off, is a well known fact.

Fear has been expressed that the czar, who is not above suspicion, may be induced to make terms with Germany, independent of the allied forces, and in this event, the allies results would be far-reaching. The allies cannot afford to lose Russian support.

A more hopeful view is entertained by people who recognize in the czar the head of the Russian church. His subjects regard the war as a holy war, and he inspires the utmost confidence as a leader.

While Grand Duke Nicholas is a great military commander, he lacks the religious zeal, which the czar inspires, and if loyal to the cause, the change of command will prove an element of strength. Time alone can determine the full significance of the change.

On With The Old.

Emery Paper thrust out his forty-eight inch chest.

"Considerin' that I'm now the richest man in the state of New Chiggo," he said to my jujube factory, "I thought it would be mighty decent in me to furnish my bathroom with the best and most expensive bath tub that money can buy," he explained.

"So trot out your tubs," said Lethgo Home, of the Home, Away and Home Bathub Emporium.

And he proudly led Emery Paper to a wonderful tub of onyx with gold spiggots incrusted with Irish point diamonds. But Emery Paper shook his head.

"Oh, well," said Lethgo Home, "How this porcelain and platinum tub with the gaudy silver handles? Or this mahogany and gold one? This glass tub is nice if you take care to pull down all the shades and everything."

But Emery Paper kept on shaking his head.

"Keep your tubs," he said at last, "my old tub at home I can lie on my back and wash the spiggots with my big toe. I couldn't do that with any of these new-fangled spiggots."

And the door of the bathtub emporium closed behind him forever.

Whitewater News

The suggestion that ex-President Taft may seek the republican nomination in 1916 is idle talk. By every law of justice and precedent, President Taft should have been permitted to succeed himself, and he would have done so but for the perfidy of his old friend the colonel. The success of the republican party is of more importance than the ambition of any candidate, and the next leader must be a man who can unite the scattered forces. This kind of a man will be found in due time, but it will be neither Taft nor Roosevelt.

There are two things which the state legislature neglected to do. One is the repeal of the primary law, the other the repeal of the mill tax. The former never had anything to recommend it and has always been a detriment to good government. The latter is a tax hole for the university and has led to all sorts of extravagance and waste of money. With property assessed at more than market value, the mill tax is a great revenue producer and adds materially to the attractiveness of the public crib.

A great army of refugees is falling back as the German army advances in Russia and poverty and suffering baffle description. These peasant people have lost all that they had, and while still in their own country, they are as helpless as though in a foreign land. The element of sympathy enlisted for Belgium is lacking and the tragedy of war has no bright side for Russia.

Why should the state of Wisconsin furnish an education to sixteen hundred non-resident students at a loss of about $200 each, and why was the legislature so reluctant to remedy the evil? The taxpayers are entitled to some consideration, as well as the university.

Spanish is being taught in the Racine schools and a class of forty is already enrolled. Our newly acquired South American trade has made it necessary to understand the language and other schools will doubtless follow Racine's example.

The storm of last Sunday night seemed to center over southern Wisconsin. There was no rain in Chicago. The season has been noted for weather which has kept the oldest inhabitant guessing.

TO FIGHT RATES TOO

Led by Sawdust City Agitators, North Central Wisconsin Cities

Will Plead.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 15.—A number of cities in northern and eastern Wisconsin will join with the Oshkosh freight rate association in an attempt to reduce rates through the instrumentalities of the state board and interstate commissions. J. N. Tittmore of Oshkosh, who is handling the case for the Fox River valley shippers, was here today preparing his complaint. He said that he would file a separate complaint against every railroad in the state. Tonight he will go to Chippewa Falls and from there to Eau Claire at the request of business organizations to confer regarding rates in that territory. Mr. Tittmore said there was also some possibility of Superior and several other cities in northern Wisconsin becoming parties to the complaint. The city of Madison has already filed its application.

"The more I take up this problem of railroad rates with the various commercial organization of other cities, the more I am convinced that the entire rail schedules in Wisconsin are too high," said Mr. Tittmore.

"Many of these manufacturers have many of their rates too high, but when all of the evidence is collected for all of the different classes of business the story is the more convincing. The complaint which I have nearly completed will effect all rates in the state."

Mr. Tittmore reiterated that many of the rates in Wisconsin were one-third too high and said that when placed on a par with the rates of Iowa the saving would mount to upwards of $3,000,000 annually.

STORM SITUATION IS WELL IN HAND AND DANGER PAST

CONDITIONS IN CITY AND VICINITY PASS STAGE OF APPREHENSION—WEST RE-COVERING.

CLEAN-UP WORK RAPID

Devastated Sections Rapidly Resuming Normal Conditions—Damage in Western Sections Encouraging.

Chicago & Northwestern train service here today was badly impaired as the result of the unsafe condition of the big bridge over the Wisconsin river at Merriam, and through trains from Minneapolis to Chicago were running several hours behind schedule. The Northwestern routed their trains around Merrimac a distance of nearly 100 miles, and when they were to stop at Oconomowoc, from there to Jefferson, from Jefferson to Madison and thence to Janesville.

The Wisconsin division of the C. & N. W. was reported to be in condition for the maintenance of schedules by local officials this morning.

The bridge trouble at Merrimac has given the Northwestern more trouble than the Milwaukee & Chicago trains running through Janesville today than at any time previously this week. The bridge abutments here are washed away by the high waters and for some distance inland on either shore the track is weak and soggy. Much debris has accumulated about the bridge piers, causing apprehension for the safety of the structure.

On the Milwaukee & St. Paul schedule was rapidly resuming normal conditions. Connections with Milwaukee were established yesterday afternoon, when the 4:40 passenger train made the first trip. The Madison line was opened yesterday afternoon, 7:08 northbound, Chicago to Madison, went through.

This morning there were only two small stretches of track that were still up as a result of the storm. These were short lines on the Mineral Point division to the west of Janesville. A stretch of washed out track between Calumet and Mineral Point made connections impossible with the latter place, and New Glarus is still as sea in a world of mud and water, no connection being as yet possible between there and Albany.

No material change in the river waters was registered in the twenty-four hours preceding noon today by the figures and observations of the upper electric company plant. At 10 a.m. a head of 31.4 inches was maintained while the net head feet was 6.5 inches. The Indian Ford observation at 7 o'clock showed a 32 inch head and net head of 6.5 inches.

Many in Janesville and throughout this section yesterday, last night and today watched in expectancy of the belief that another storm would sweep this section. The weather forecast of yesterday indicated the coming of hundred storms, and throughout the day there was an oppressive humidity which forecasted a storm. The heavy showers of early afternoon and of last evening only served to make the dubious firm in their belief.

It was feared with the coming of another bad storm still greater damage would be wrought, as all streams and rivers of this section are high above the banks in raging torrents.

Reports today from the western part of Janesville and adjacent to Monroe, which was deluged by the early Monday morning cloudburst, only serve to swell the total of loss which has been sustained and which cannot be estimated thus far. The reports, however, carry the assurance that the high waters of sugar and mineral rivers are now receding and that the principal danger is past.

In addition to the losses sustained from the carrying out of two dams and a bridge at Monticello, and the fire which destroyed the Illinois Central depot, warehouse, cheese cellar and lumberyard, together with railway boxcars and other property at Argonne, a highly apparent that the greatest loss to Monroe has been the drowning of cattle.

Reports from passengers at the Milwaukee depot this morning were that thousands of dollars worth of stock were being caught in the high water and carried to their death in the whirling addies. Many of these are the pick of the herds in the rich grazing section of the United States, and the loss in cattle alone will be enormous.

The resumption of freight traffic on the Mineral Point division of the Milwaukee road alleviated a condition to day at towns west of Janesville which on Monday and Tuesday were becoming alarming. Monday shipments of freight to villages on this division are the heaviest of the week, and as a result of the abandoning of trains, men, materials and commissaries were becoming highly expensive. Existing food conditions, grocery stocks were near the danger point, this especially being true of sugar, some of the stores having exhausted their supplies.

The butchers were also hit by the abandonment of trains and stocks of meat, such as are shipped from Chicago plants, were also at a low point.

SIDE TALKS —By— RUTH CAMERON

HEAD ON.

The Cynic chuckled. "It isn't considered polite to read a book while visiting," said Molly pointedly. And reaching out she gently but firmly removed the book from his hand.

"Hey—stop it," said the Cynic. Then, "Pshaw—you've lost my place. I was just getting interested—"

"Serves you right. You shouldn't read while we're talking—"

"Fashions," interposed the Cynic. "The last thing I remember hearing was something about a question of fitness in some skirt. I picked up the hook in self-defense. One of the Author-man's I guess—by Stewart Edward White, and all about camping. What I laughed at was the description of a wet morning in camp."

"A Wet Morning in Camp. I don't think a wet morning in camp is anything to laugh at," said the Author-man's wife, reminiscently.

"It isn't," agreed the Cynic, except in retrospect. Everything is as wet and soggy as you are going to be, ten seconds after you roll out of your blankets (if you aren't already so). The tenderfoot (as White was pointing out when you stole my book) ventures out shrinkingly. He's awfully afraid he's going to get wet, which he is, as sure as shooting, and he's doing his best to stave off the inevitable."

"The hardened old-timer ploughs in philosophically and takes his wetting. It's unpleasant, of course, but in a few minutes the edge of physical discomfort is worn off. And that's the end of it. Not so the tenderfoot. He stumbles along, ducking this branch only to run into the next one. He's getting wet, awfully wet. To the physical discomfort he's adding mental discomfort. He's ten times as uncomfortable as a result of his efforts as the man who took his ducking straight, and not one bit dryer."

"It seems to me that if I cut—" began the Author-man's wife, who had been eying the garment on her lap with preoccupied inattention.

"Silence," commanded the Cynic. This tale has a moral, which, in the absence of the Lady-what-always-knows-something, I'm going to venture to state. It goes to show that if—"

Molly Points the Moral.

"A certain man I know would only tell his landlady," interrupted Molly, "that he's got to move the first of the month, instead of going about thinking how nice she has been to him and how sorry she'll feel to lose him and how much he dreads the ordeal, he'd not be in the same class as the tenderfoot he's poking fun at. Silly, as if everybody didn't know that if we'd meet life's nuisances head on, instead of shrinking within our skins, we'd be happier and wiser and nowhere near so uncomfortable."

"Perhaps everybody does know so," said the Cynic. "But if so, plague you all upon it."

Heart and Home Problems

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette. Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man contemplating marriage and would like you to answer the following questions:

(1) About what sum should a young man have in the bank before getting married?

(2) What should be his monthly salary to be able to support a wife?

(3) Should I give her a diamond ring?

Am a twenty-five years of age and have a steady position.

THANK YOU.

(1) Although it is advisable to have enough money to begin housekeeping in a fairly comfortable manner, yet it is not absolutely essential to have a home.

Much depends, of course, upon the style of living to which the young couple have become accustomed, and the sacrifices they are willing to make in order that they may have a home together. No matter what the circumstances, I would not marry, if I were you, until after I had saved up $500.

(2) A definite minimum for a salary could not be decided upon without some knowledge of the two persons concerned; the kind of life the girl has been used to; the chance for advancement, and the size of the city or town in which you would live. Since you are but twenty-five, with a steady position, and as you will probably continue to live in a town where expenses are not great, as you might, it should be safe to begin on as little as fifteen dollars a week; even fifteen if you are both willing to live frugally and carefully.

(3) It is not necessary to buy an engagement ring. However, if you can afford it do so. If you cannot afford a diamond, why not give her a ring in which her birthstone is used.

Pearl Mrs. Thompson: I am going to be very frank with you in telling you my troubles. I am a girl sixteen years of age and I am living at home. I am like all other girls, anxious to have boy friends. Please do not think me silly, as I am sensible for my age. There is a boy whom my mother ob-

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Country Doctors and Hospital Doctors. James Mackenzie, the great English heart specialist, won his fame and ascribed his grasp of heart disease to experience obtained in country practice. As he worked in his work on Diseases of the Heart, he found that gatiers in hospital wards and laboratories have little idea of the difficulties the general practitioner has to encounter. The little I have been able to do in this respect (that is, interpreting the symptoms of heart disease) has but opened my eyes to the extraordinarily rich field for investigation that lies before the general practitioner." As Mackenzie is one of the world's authorities in his special subject?

Perhaps the country doctor and the private practitioner of a past generation lacked some of the conveniences and instruments of precision that hospitals and dispensaries supplied for the use of physicians working on their staffs. Today, however, the doctor in the small village has everything his big hospital colleague can have, both in paraphernalia and scientific literature. Indeed, we think the average country doctor today is more abreast of the times than the average city physician or hospital staff physician. And for this reason: The country practitioner is comparatively more able to devote time and money to post-graduate study and special reading, having less from "dinner and a "lecture" in competition with his medical neighbors.

People sometimes imagine that because a city physician is connected with a hospital he is therefore an abler man than the country doctor or the private practitioner in town. We know, for we have enjoyed the emoluments accruing from such a position. Yet it is true that the majority of hospital staff appointments are filled by practitioners well known in America, rather than by professional competition as abroad. The fact that a physician is or is not connected with a hospital is of little or no significance insofar as professional competence is concerned. Some signally unqualified practitioners are serving as physicians and surgeons on hospital staffs—serving without compensation, of course, but simply for what prestige they can

Household Hints

MAT TO CLEAN SHOES.

If you want a good mat to clean shoes on, take a rope one or two inches thick and lay it on the board, beginning at the center, lay the board around till mat is big enough for use. Then nail rope fast to the board at beginning, and every three or four inches, to keep it in place. Saw the board around the size of rug. Easy to keep clean.

SAVES TIME.

When you wish to crochet an edge to a kerchief or other work just stick the edge all the way around the machine, not using any thread. This will make the tiny holes the same distance apart through which the crochet hook will slip easily without having to punch cloth every time.

IF SUIT GETS SHINY.

If your blue serge suit becomes shiny, renovate in the following way: Make a strong "blue" winter sponge, then, with it, allow to soak slightly, spread on ironing board, cover with piece of muslin, press with hot iron.

THE TABLE.

Marshmallow Icing—One cup sugar, add two-thirds cup water and boil till it spins a thread. Have one-half pound marshmallows cut in quarters, beat in the syrup while hot, add pulp verized sugar to make the desired thickness.

Chocolate Marshmallow Cake—Melt in double boiler two squares of chocolate, half cup milk, one cup sugar; set aside to cool. When cool, beat in the yolk of one egg. Make a batter, half cup butter, one cup sugar, half cup milk, two eggs, two teaspoons baking powder and 2½ cups pastry flour. Beat in chocolate mixture into batter. Bake in three round layer cake tins. Frosting and filling: Bring to the boiling point half cup water and one cup sugar. Stir in, one at a time, one-half pound marshmallows and soak until thick enough to spread. Beat in a little salt and one teaspoon of vanilla.

Apple Salad—Wash, pare and cut into cubes six large apples. To them add one cupful chopped celery, two cups English walnut kernels (save small halves for top of salad). Make dressing of two eggs, half cup sugar, one-fourth cup vinegar, two tablespoons butter and one tablespoon flour. Cook all together in double boiler, stirring constantly. When it thickens remove from fire and beat five minutes. When cold stir into the apple mixture. Serve in salad bowl, using half kernels to decorate garnish with celery leaves.

Racicot Custard—Soak one cup tapioca overnight in water. Cover until clear. Then beat two eggs light, add all together and bake till brown. When cool slice four large ripe bananas in it. Better still with whipped cream on top. Flavor with vanilla if desired.

Eggless Cookies—Two cups sugar, one-half cup lard, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, four enough to make a stiff dough; any flavor you like.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"It's the Scotts' night to entertain," said Parsons. "I crave amusement."

"Sorry, old man, but our stage properties have been derelict; you'll have to look elsewhere for entertainment to-night."

"Get Brice to tell you a story; he's a crackerjack at that," suggested Jaynes.

"Do," chorused the campers.

"I am afraid to try after that send-off."

"Please, smile at the the face."

"But if I can be of any service I shall be most happy."

"Pile up the firewood," called the doctor, rolling up a log for a smoke. "The smoke will help keep the mosquitoes away, and a fire light is another a pretty background for a story."

Mr. Brice sat down on the grass, his queer little figure outlined against the red glow of the fire. Nell said afterward, "He looks like a gnome with his humped back, head covered with bushy hair and large nose." This was his story:

"When I was a boy I lived in the mountains of West Virginia, and our nearest own was in a narrow valley on a big stream. There were four boys of about the same age who lived on adjoining farms. They proposed that we walk over to the town on Saturday night. I was not allowed to go to town with the boys as it was considered wild and wicked by my parents. However, I went early to bed and crept out over the woodshed roof, and across the back lot to the road where they had agreed to wait for me. We enjoyed the walk in the fresh moonlight and came around the railroad station to watch the night train come in, and I enjoyed the sensation of being deliciously wicked, when I thought how my father would look at me over his glasses if he could see me then.

"It was after ten when we started home, and we beguiled the way with stories of ghosts and deeds of daring. There was a little graveyard on the edge of a pine grove that bordered a short cut over the hills. We often used this path in daylight, but it never occurred to me to shorten our midnight walk by taking that route home. Joe Fitz lived a mile farther than any of us and he proposed that we go that way home, arguing that ghosts couldn't hurt four boys in that many ways."

"I don't much believe in ghosts," he added, as the others turned down his plan.

"You're afraid," he twitted.

"If you're not afraid of ghosts, you go that way by yourself," challenged Dave Rogers, the biggest daredevil in the country.

"Oh, that's too lonesome," Joe objected.

"You're afraid," rejoined Dave. "I dare you to go."

"I never take a dare," Joe said, throwing his head back. "I'll be at Jackson's corners before you get there, and I'll wait for you."

"He started bravely up the steep path. We watched him, expecting him to turn. I almost called to him to come back. As he never turned, we hurried along the road and half ran as we neared the corners. There was no sign of him. We started down toward the graveyard and hung around the bend in the road till it began to grow light. Finally Dave said: "He's probably gone home; he's not tired of waiting. You know it's lots nearer that way. Let's go home."

"So we stole off and crept into our several beds and slept nine the next morning. Mr. Fitz slept."

"'Sein anything of Joe?' he called. "No, he's not been here; have you lost him?"

"He went to town with the boys last night and I thought he might have stopped here for the night."

"Billy wasn't along. Maybe he stayed with Dave or John," answered fat Parsons.

"Mr. Fitz stopped the rains on the horse's back and drove off without another word."

"I felt a deadly sinking of the heart and must have been very pale, for when father came over to me he said:

"You know something of this; tell me about it," I told him.

"He never said a word, but went to the barn and saddled the mare and trotted off down the road to David's house. Here he overtook Mr. Fitz and told him what he had learned. Together they went to the graveyard. They found poor Joe lying dead across a grave, his feet tangled up in a rope. An old white horse was peacefully cropping grass near him. They figured it out that he had reached the graveyard in a state of high nervous tension and had caught a glimpse of the old horse's countenance and taken it for a ghost. Probably his step started the horse to running and the rope was across the path. His feet were caught and he was violently thrown to the ground. The shock was too much for him. He died of heart failure, the doctor said."

A shudder ran around the group as Mr. Brice stopped speaking.

"It was after ten when we started home, and we beguiled the way with stories of ghosts and deeds of daring.

There was a little graveyard on the edge of a pine grove that bordered a short cut over the hills. We often used this path in daylight, but it never occurred to me to shorten our midnight walk by taking that route home. STREAM OF TOURISTS NOW VIEW BATTLEFIELDS

Paris, Sept. 15.—The stream of tourists, who will travel increasingly over the battlefields, for scores of years after the European war is finished, has already begun. The traveler who obtains a suitable permission can now take a train from Paris to Meaux in the morning, drive in an automobile all day over country which was the scene of some very important fighting nearly a year ago, and be back in Paris in time for a late supper.

There is not much to be seen, for the ripening harvests conceal even the hundreds of wooden crosses which still mark the places where men fell dead and were hastily buried. White crosses mark the graves of French dead; black posts with a rectangular stamp on them mark German dead.

There are still shattered trenches and houses which show the marks of shrapnel and machine gun fire, and some of the smaller bridges over the Marne are not yet replaced. One road, hostile which was struck by a German shell, has changed its name, and now boasts a signboard inscribed in French, "The Shell Inn."

You can own your own home easily by reading and acting on the offers contained in Gazette Want Ads. Do it now.

MYSTERIOUS NEWSPAPER APPEARS IN BRUSSELS AGAINST GERMAN ORDERS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Amsterdam, Sept. 15.—Notwithstanding all efforts of the German authorities in Brussels, there still appears at frequent intervals a little newspaper called La Libre Belgique, which is published. The publisher's address, according to the inscription beneath the title, is "Kommandatur" the German headquarters, which is the editor's little joke, of course. A copy is always delivered to each of the leading German officials.

The aim of the paper, according to its own statement, is "to sustain the spirit and patriotism" of the Belgian people. Events of the war are dealt with in any fashion and the people are shown why they need not be disengaged.

WISCONSIN POTATOES SUFFER WITH BLIGHT LOSSES TO BE LARGE

BLIND PUPILS HAVE AN EXHIBIT AT FAIR

Students at State School Located Here Show Their Handiwork and Accomplishments at Milwaukee.

A woman's industrial exchange has been established in connection with the Wisconsin School for the Blind at Janesville, which is a boon to the blind women of the state.

Miss Alice Turner, field worker for the school for the blind, in traveling about the state found that many women were able to make suitable articles but could find no market for them and through her ingenuity an industrial exchange was established, the worker sending her articles to Miss Turner and she caring for them in the state, having conveniently places in the towns where her work takes her.

Display Is Attractive.

The display at the Janesville school, located in the Educational building at the state fair, is attracting much attention, the visitor marveling at the accomplishments of the blind.

Miss Blanche Carroll is a proficient piano player and might make the normal player look to her laurels. Miss Mary O'Brien runs a typewriter and dictaphone. Mary Hahn presides at the sewing machine and crochets and knits as rapidly as though possessed with all her faculties. When knitting she uses halpins so that the stitches do not get lost. William Hansen plays the cornet and gives vocal selections. John Kostuck demonstrates the work of hammock making, caning and rush seating chairs. The last accomplishment is a revival of an ancient art recently introduced at the institution, a blind teacher coming from Boston to teach the young people.

Miss Turner and Miss Martha Whitman, domestic science teachers at the school, have charge of the exhibit and cheerfully furnish any information the visitor wishes to know.

The school has an enrollment of 136 pupils varying from 6 years to 21 years of age.

What Exhibit Consists Of.

The exhibit at the fair consists of fine handwork, machine made garments, woven rugs, substantial hammocks, shapely baskets of raffia, crochet doilies, embroidered towels and almost everything that comes under the head of home craft work.

The five students who were given a treat when they were taken over to the tent where the elephants are kept and were given a brief lecture on the life and habits of these beasts of burden by Mr. Powers.

Never before had they been close to an elephant and their amazement was unbounded when they were made to realize the size of the animal. William Hansen, who has seen a wife, tried to explain to the rest the enormity of the creature, but not until each student had been led up to the elephant and allowed to feel of them were they convinced of the greatness of the creatures known to them before only by hearsay.

John Kostuck lost his sight as a result of an electric explosion and so interested is he in his work of banding cane and raffia that he begins to think the accident was a blessing in disguise.

STATE WILL MAINTAIN AN EMPLOYMENT OFFICE AT THE STATE FAIR

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., Sept. 15.—A completely equipped branch of the Wisconsin public employment offices maintained by the state of Wisconsin is one of the new features of the state fair this week. Those who take in the fair may visit the branch and place their orders for farm help. Employers in all industries may do the same. Even housewives who want kitchen help may file their applications. Farm boys who want jobs in any part of the state need only tell the man in charge of the booth and their names will be entered in the books for those who are called for. The Wisconsin industrial commission, which runs the public employment offices, intended at first to illustrate in the booth the work of the employment offices but later decided to add other features for the benefit of manufacturers. Posters for use in factories, bulletins on various causes of accidents and other features of interest will be found in the booth. During the last few months the commission has been supplying manufacturers with graphic posters showing the results of carelessness on the part of employees. These posters deal with such subjects as scaffolding, infection through skin punctures, correct methods of placing ladders, etc.

BRIDGES AND DAM WASHED AWAY AT COOKSVILLE MONDAY

Cooksville, Sept. 14.—The storm Sunday night was the worst in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. The dam washed out between seven and eight o'clock in the marshy north of the town. It looks like a lake, the bridge is washed around so it is not passable, the new bridge a mile east of town is the same way. To get to Stongtown people have to go round by Oregon. Two-thirds of the cellars in town have water in them, a thing not known before. Corn in many places is flat; flowers and plants out of doors are used up. If this is the effects of war, good Lord deliver us.

WHITEWATER SUFFERS DAMAGE FROM FLOOD

Nine Valuable Race Horses in Derailment at Palmyra—Traffic Tied Up.

Whitewater, Sept. 14.—Heavy rains on Sunday and Monday did extensive damage here as the water in the creeks and lakes is the highest for many years. Two o'clock Monday morning the freight train on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul system from Monroe to Milwaukee was derailed off the track near Ondoll, three miles east of this city. Nine cars went into the ditch and four toppled over and the others were in break position.

One freight car was smashed to match wood. Many of the cars contained stock for the state fair and three held race horses coming from Monroe. All the animals were taken out without serious injury. The horses were: J. O. Charles Bond, Lucille De Forest, Palatine, Ill.; Besse Custer, Hazelwood and Peter Clark, both of Milwaukee; Miss Flossie Love, Downs and Jessie Red, owned by Harry Putnam and George Vogel.

The other cars contained cement and merchandise. The terrific rain made a river of the creek and the track for some distance was swept clear from the road-bed. The engine broke loose from the train but stayed on the track. Conductor Brady reported the condition at Palmyra. Another washout fully a half mile from the first one made conditions far worse. The wrecker was unable to reach the derailed cars.

Men taking care of the horses in the cars that went into the ditch escaped with but minor injuries.

High water stopped operations at the American Milk company's plant, as there was eighteen inches of water in the boiler room. The Stone Mill basement was filled with water and the Register office flooded to the ground floor. Roads leading into the city were impassable because of numerous washouts and no mails have been received from Milwaukee since Saturday night.

POLICE IN PARIS RAID APACHES AT REGULAR INTERVALS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Paris, Sept. 15.—Promenaders on the grand boulevards of Paris have recently been treated to a spectacle comparatively rare since the beginning of the war, general police raids such as were effected at regular intervals during the days of the "Apaches." In the 9th and 18th arrondissements, comprising Montmartre, Belleville, the faubourg of the Louvre, the Faubourg du Temple, the Faubourg Poissonniere, white other squads start from the side of the boulevard and sweep the Faubourg Poissonniere, while the police like a hawk, the bridges are washed around so it is not passable, the new bridge a mile east of town is the same way. To get to Stongtown people have to go round by Oregon. Two-thirds of the cellars in town have water in them, a thing not known before. Corn in many places is flat; flowers and plants out of doors are used up. If this is the effects of war, good Lord deliver us.

You can own your own home easily by reading and acting on the offers contained in Gazette Want Ads. Do it now.

Besides the rounds of the plainclothes men on the hunt for civilians in default, subaltern officers of the army now make nightly rounds of the wine-shops and cafes for delinquent soldiers. When one is seen inside a wine-shop after the stroke of nine, a sharp reminder in the form of a single word "militaire" brings him to realization that martial law is still in force, and he salutes mockingly and returns to his headquarters.

Russians Put Boots On Geese When Driving Them to the Markets

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Petrograd, Sept. 15.—Viina, the Russian city which has figured extensively in the operations of the retreating armies from the Warsaw district, is probably the only place in the world where geese are shot.

The Viina district is celebrated for producing geese, which are sold by thousands in distant markets. In normal times, great flocks are driven by the geese-herds to the famous goose fair or market at Koenigsberg, 200 miles distant. To prevent the birds getting lost on the long journey, they are made during the late autumn to walk through tar, and then through fine sand. The geese are thus provided with a perfect fitting pair of boots, in which they can comfortably make the rounds to market.

CIVIC LEAGUE PREPARES FOR WORK OF SEASON

The September meeting of the Janesville Civic league was held Monday afternoon at the city hall. The attendance was good and the reports from the various committees were excellent. The treasurer's report was especially encouraging. Mrs. Hall and her committee gave a very complete account of the work that has been done by them during the summer on Y. W. C. A. details.

The president notified the vice-president that they were a nominating committee to make a list of names of persons to become the officers of the league for the next year. She also advised that individuals of the club send to the vice-president negative lists of persons elected as officers in the league. The annual election occurs on the first Friday in October.

LAKOTA CLUB PLANS HALLOWEEN PARTY FOR OCTOBER 29TH

Members of the Lakota club, at their last meeting, arranged tentative plans for their annual Halloween party. It will be held on Friday evening Oct. 29, this year. Walter Airlis is the chairman in charge of arrangements. The dancing party of last Halloween was a success in every feature, taking the form of a wild and crazy affair. The old style of dances were enjoyed, the tango and the latest maneuvers of the Teutonic art being tabooed that evening. It is expected that the committee will arrange some similar innovation for the affair next month.

NEW GERMAN BOOKS AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

The public library has purchased the following new German books, which are now ready for distribution: Die Hosen des Herrn von Breadow, Alexis; Der Werwolf, Alexis; Auf der Heide, Nisse; Aus dem Leben eines Taugenichts, Eichendorff; Das Nest der Zaunkoige, Freytag; Ingo und Ingraben, Freytag; Packungsfrau, Ganhofer; Die vierre, die ihm nicht erfreut, Meyring; Sylvester von Geyen; Objekta; Sonnenstein, Rosengren; Ekkehard Scheffel; Die von Hohenstein, Spielhagen; Die Wacht am Rhein, Viebig.

FOUR FOOT OF WATER COVERS THE LOWLANDS

Brodhead, Sept. 15.—Water to the depth of four to five feet covers the bottoms west of the city, which ordinarily is a fine pasture and only at a time like a spring freshet is partially covered with water. After the headgates were carried away yesterday forenoon many breaks occurred in the race bank. Live stock on the low land was marooned on little spots of higher ground while others sought into the creek and carried down stream. At Decatur Park, a cottage owned by W. W. Douglas, which was located on an island in Decatur Lake, was carried away. Never before had such high water been known in this vicinity. Train service east, west and north is badly crippled. The water is now subsiding and by tomorrow the extent of damage done here may be known.

Fairfield, Sept. 12.—A large number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Robinson gathered at their pleasant home Friday evening and gave them a fare-well surprise. They are soon to move to their new home in Janesville.

The supper consisted of five courses at five different homes as follows: First course, at Miss Alice Brown's; second at Misses Alice and Effie Leibek's; third at Miss Clara Wadleigh's; fourth at Miss John Scholl's, and fifth at Miss Nellie Klawon's.

The severe storms of Wednesday and Sunday did not pass us by, and although the damage from ball which totally destroyed the tobacco in many places, did comparatively slight damage here.

Everything is flooded beyond all previous records; the bridges

Fulton and Stebbinsville, and McCann's bridge are all gone and under seven feet of water. The big gravel road being built by William and Keeley was lined with belated Sunday visitors Monday morning, and people are forced to go miles out of their usual routes to reach Edgerston and adjoining towns and cities. Our mail carrier, Neil Mason, was unable to get through Monday.

OLD, JUST THE SAME.

"The insulting wretch! He asked me if I remembered the dreadfully cold winter of 1869—think of it!"

"Oh, I'm sure he didn't mean to offend you. He probably didn't know what bad memory you have."
